Two convicted — of loansharking

A US District Court jury yesterday found two men guilty of loansharking charges after a trial in which Gennaro (Jerry) Angiulo, reputed Boston organized crime leader, was alleged to be the source of their money.

Richard (Vinnie) De-Vincent of Thistle road, Woburn, and Robert Visconti of Lake street, Brighton, were convicted of making an extortionateloan and of conspiracy. They were acquitted of another conspiracy charge and of making a second loan.

Chief Judge Andre A.

Caffrey scheduled sentencing May 7.

The victim, Peter J.
Pallotta, testified he borrowed $700 from the defendants at an annual interest of 156 percent.
When he fell behind on his $28-a-week payments, Pallotta said DeVincent threatened to get him with an ice pick and to break his legs. Pallotta said De-Vincent had a reputation as "a head crusher." «

Dear Tom:
I wish to express my gratitude to you and bfc - 2 b7C - 2 your department for the cooperation in the case of United States vs.
I also wish to commend Captain and Officers who testified in U. S. District Court, b6 - 2, 3, 4 Boston. It was primarily through their testimony that b7c - 2, 3, 4 s bail was revoked and he was remanded into rederal custody for a period of eight years. It has been brought to my attention that the officers' testimony was most impressive, both in form and substance, and was complemented by the court and others in attendance, including Chief of the New England Organized Crime Strike Force.
Captain was responsible for furnishing b6 - 2, 3 this office the information which predicated the Govern-b7c - 2, 3 ment's motion to have bail revoked. He personally organized all the available facts and arranged for the appearance of the previously-mentioned officers on extremely short notice.
It is gratifying to note the excellent results achieved through federal and local law enforcement agencies.
Very truly yours, STATEAN

RICHARD F. BATES WALL Special Agent in Charge

Quincy man gets 10 years in loan case

James Martorano received a 10-year-prison sentence on loanshark charges yesterday in US District Court. Chief Judge Andrew A. Caffrey, who imposed the sentence, ordered it delayed pending the outcome of an appeal to the US Court of Appeals.

Martorano, who was convicted by a jury June 14, remains free on $50,000 bail.

In urging a stiff sentence, Justice Dept. Atty. Martin Boudreau told Caffrey that Martorano "was the man at the top of the heap in this case. He has the power and stature to order others to commit violence as well as committing violence himself."

The 34-year-old Martorano, a resident of Billings street, Quincy, is a business associate of Howard T. Winter who has been described by law enforcement officials as a powerful figure in the Greater Boston underworld.

Winter operates out of Somerville and is seen daily at Motorama Auto Sales Inc., at 12 Marshall st., in that city. Martorano has been listed as president of the auto firm. He has described Winter as a legitimate businessman he has known for years:

Quincy man gets 10 years

for loan sharking

By William F. Doherty and Richard J. Connolly Globe Staff

James Martorano received a 10-year-prison sentence on loanshark charges today in US District Court. Chief Judge Andrew A. Caffrey, who imposed the sentence, ordered it delayed pending the outcome of an appeal to the US Court of Appeals.

Martorano, who was convicted by a jury June 14, remains free on $50,000 bail.

In urging a stiff sentence,
Justice Dept. Atty. Martin
Boudreau told Caffrey that Martorano "was the man at the top of the heap in this case. He has the power and stature to order others to commit violence as well as committing violence himself."

winter operates out of Somerville and is seen daily at Motorama Auto Sales Inc., at 12 Marshall st., in that city. Martorano has been listed as president of the auto firm. He has described Winter as a legitimate businessman he has known for years.

the dapper, prematurely greying Martorano is a graduate of Boston College. He attended night school for seven years to earn his degree. His education was interrupted when he was arrested as an accessory after the fact of murder.

He got out of State Prison in Walpole in 1968 after serving two years of a sentence of four-to-six years in connection with the murder of a waitress whose body was found stuffed in a sack in a loft over a Combat Zone nightspot in 1964.

His conviction in the current case results from the testimony of Peter J. Pallotta, 38, of Revere, a one-time bank robber who said he borrowed money from Martorano in an unsuccessful effort to save, his Revere nightclub, known as "The Bitter End."

Pallotta testified that Martorano's interest rate was $100 weekly on the $2000. The interest was exclusive of the principal, Pallotta said, "and I knew he was 100 percent in getting his collections back."

"Nobody missed," the witness said of Martora-Martorano and 10 others were indicted by a Federal grand jury for alleged loansharking last September. Three men have been convicted, four have pleaded guilty, three have yet to go to trial and one was acquitted.

The last is Edward Brian Halloran, 34, of Welles avenue, Dorchester, an inmate at Norfolk Prison Colony, who was tried with Martorano and found not guilty when Martorano was convicted on June 14.

Martorano was convicted on four counts of loansharking and Halloran was acquitted of four counts after a jury trial.

Pallotta testified that Halloran visited his night-club Oct. 31, 1974, to collect delinquent payments for Martorano and when Pallotta said he didn't have the money Halloran displayed a gun and stole $445 from the cash register.

He said he had been at the Federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., with Halloran at one time and "I knew he was a loan shark, collector and enforcer and a madman."

Pallotta said he made the request for the $2000 loan from Martorano in a visit to Chandler's Restaurant in Boston's South End which closed after a suspicious fire on June 18, 1975.

Martorano and Winter owned the building. Large loans obtained on the property have been investigated by detectives assigned to the office of Suffolk Dist. Atty. Garrett H. Byrne.

Pallotta testified that he went to Chandler's with his brother, Louis (Bugsy) Pallotta, that Martorano gave him two packages with $1000 in each and told him the weekly interest would be "five points" on each $1000.

After being threatened with a gun because of failure to make payments, Pallotta said, he became so frightened he didn't dare to go home. He said he lived in his automobile for awhile and, finally, telephoned US Atty. James N. Gabriel about Nov. 20, 1974.

Gabriel contacted Gerald E. McDowell, chief attorney in charge of the Justice Department's Organized Crime Strike Force in New England, and within 20 minutes Pallotta was under the protection of FBI Agents John M. Morris and Thomas Daly.

He was given a new identity and moved to the West Coast by the Justice Department. But he said he didn't have enough money, was frightened and wrote a letter to his brother, Bugsy, requesting that it be sent to Winter.

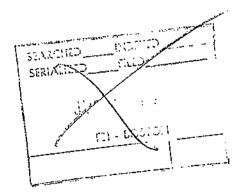

In the letter, Pallotta testified, he requested $20,000 to leave the country and thus avoid appearance as a prosecution witness, because "I knew my life wouldn't be worth five cents around here."

However, he returned to Boston and testified against Martorano and Halloran. Martorano was represented by Atty. Joseph S. Oteri and Halloran's counsel was Atty. Martin G. Weinberg.

Martorano and Halloran face further court action on charges of violating the state gun law. They were arrested in April, 1975, after a chase through The Fenway in Boston. Police said their can sped off, when two officers tried to question them, and that the car crashed into a traffic Rght pole.

caliber re er and an M-1 automode rifle with 15 rounds of ammunition, according to police. Neither had a license to carry a gun, police said.

Halloran's current imprisonment results from an attack on an off-duty MBTA policeman near an Atlantic Avenue restaurant on March 28, 1974. He started serving a three-to-five-year term at Norfolk last May 9 for assault and battery with a dangerous weapon.

'Top loanshark' in Hub area gets 10 years, $10,000 fine

A Quincy man described as "at the top of Boston of Dorchester, Martorano's area loansharking" was sentenced to 10 years in necent by a jury. prison and fined $10,000

Atty. Joseph Oteri immediately appealed the sentence of James Martorano, 34, of Billings.st. Federal District Judge Andrew A . Caffrey: continued bail at $50,000.

Martorano was one of 11 Greater Boston men indicted last September on loansharking charges. He was the seventh to be convicted or plead guilty.

Edward "Brian" Halloran co-defendant, was found in-

The case against Martorano and the others is said to be the largest investigation of loansharking by the FBI in New England.

A key witness, Peter J. Pallotta, a Revere nightclub. owner, testified he was threatened when he was unable to repay a $2000 loan.

He said his nightclub was held up after he missed $250 a week payments he was supposed to make to repay the loan - with a 260 percent interest rate.

Quincy man gets 10 years in loan case

James Martorano received a 10-year-prison sentence on loanshark charges yesterday in US District Court. Chief Judge Andrew A. Caffrey, who imposed the sentence, ordered it delayed pending the outcome of an appeal to the US Court of Appeals.

Martorano, who was convicted by a jury June 14, remains free on $50,000 bail.

In urging a stiff sentence, Justice Dept. Atty. Martin Boudreau told Caffrey that Martorano "was the man at the top of the heap in this case. He has the power and stature to order others to commit violence as well as "committing violence"

The 34-year-old Martorano, a resident of Billings street, Quincy, is a business associate of Howard T. Winter who has been described by law enforcement officials as a powerful figure in the Greater Boston underworld.

Winter operates out of Somerville and is seen daily at Motorama Auto Sales Inc., at 12 Marshall st., in that city. Martorano has been listed as president of the auto firm. He has described Winter as a legitimate businessman he has known for years.

FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION

Date of transcription_____10/14/75

On October 10, 1975, a surveillance was initiated in the vicinity of 508 Main Street, Medford, Massachusetts (Vico Sales), and the following activity was observed, and in some instances photographed, at the times indicated:

8:30 a.m.

Surveillance initiated. Motion pictures of the store front were taken and also photographs with a 35 mm camera were taken of the store front and area.

9:58 a.m.

A white male, wearing a maroon leisure suit, medium build, with dark hair, in a mod cut, known to agents as ROBERT VISCONTI, arrived and opened Vico Sales store. Motion pictures were taken of VISCONTI entering the store.

10:00 a.m. to 10:02 a.m.

ROBERT VISCONTI left Vico Sales and went next door to an insurance company. Approximately two minutes later, VISCONTI returned from the insurance company with a cup of coffee and entered Vico Sales. Photographs were taken with the 35 mm camera.

10:09 a.m.

A Pontiac station wagon pulled up adjacent to Vico Sales and parked on Hicks Avenue. The driver, a white male, medium build, short hair, middle thirties, wearing a windbreaker and slacks, was observed to get out of the Pontiac and enter Vico Sales. Photographs were taken with the 35 mm camera.

10:10 a.m.

A yellow Ford was observed to pull up and park behind the Pontiac station wagon on Hicks Avenue. The driver, a white male, age middle sixties, heavy build, balding, wearing slacks and a button-type sweater, departed the Ford and entered Vico Sales. Motion pictures were taken of this individual leaving the Ford and entering the store.

10:12 a.m.

The white male, who previously entered Vico Sales from the Pontiac station wagon, was observed to depart the store, enter the Pontiac and drive away. Motion pictures were taken of this individual.

10:12 a.m.

Two young white females were observed to enter the store.

10:12 a.m.

ROBERT VISCONTI and the driver of the yellow Ford, an unknown white male in his middle sixties, came out of Vico Sales and commenced a conversation in front of the store.

10:26 a.m.

VISCONTI and the white male in his middle sixties terminated the conversation. VISCONTI returned to Vico Sales and the other white male returned to his Ford and drove away. Motion pictures were taken at various times during VISCONTI's and the unidentified white male's conversation. Also, photographs with the 35 mm camera were taken.

10:30 a.m.

Surveillance discontinued.

JOHN C. KIRWAN CHIEF OF POLICE

December 24, 1976

To whom it may concern:

We, the undersigned, are the day shift and night shift Commanders of the Medford Police Department. We are writing this letter on behalf of Mr. Robert L. Visconti, whose business, Vico Sales, is located in Medford, Mass.

We have each known Mr. Visconti for many years. In addition to personal acquaintances, we know something of Mr. Visconti's background, including his prior involvement in the criminal courts of the Commonwealth.

Having the benefit of that knowledge, we have both seen fit to have his place of business watched occasionally after he opened it in the belief that good police work includes keeping track of persons who we know to have prior records of criminal involvement.

Over the years since Vico Sales opened, the type of surveillance work mentioned above has given us what we believe to be an accurate view of Mr. Visconti and his business in our city. We have learned that Mr. Visconti has run an honest business and has been, to our knowledge, honest and law abiding himself. We both know he works long hours at his store, at least six days a week and sometimes seven.

In addition to maintaining an honorable business, we both have personal knowledge of an almost countless number of people he has helped over the years without seeking personal gain for himself.

We both honestly believe that Mr. Visconti has completely separated himself from the associations and conduct that led him to his prior criminal actions. We believe, based on personal knowledge, that Mr. Visconti has been a law abiding citizen.

Neither of us are in the habit of welcoming criminals into Medford and we began our observations of Mr. Visconti from that standpoint. He had to prove himself to us. He has done so and we are glad to have him in our city.

We also know quite a bit about the man who went to trial with Mr. Visconti. We wholeheartedly agree that he is a criminal and a danger to society.

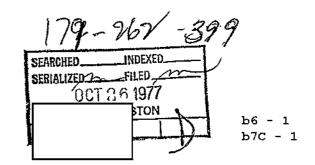

We suspect that the long period of imprisonment that Mr. Viscontt now faces is, in large part, due to his apparent association with What may not be known, however, is that many people, including us, believe Mr. Visconti has been forced to associate himself with fear of the man. He is a man who is always ready to do violence to those who do not do his bidding. Why then haven't people, like Visconti, simply reported him to the police and have him arrested? It is a sad fact that police protection is often no guarantee against somebody like

This does not excuse Visconti by any means or give him the right to break any laws. But he is still a man who has helped many, many people and who is liked by many, many good people. b7C - 2

We believe anyone who breaks the law should not escape punishment; but, we know that punishment has many forms. In Visconi's case we honestly believe he should not be imprisoned for eight years'.

We would respectfully request that Mr. Visconti be given the opportunit to stay on in business in Medford. We know he was convicted of a very serious charge, but we also know character that is,

2, 197% the chief covernment witness. was outfitted with a body transmitting device and dealed the existence of a body recorder. Agent further testified that at the time of the alleged conversation on December 2, 1974, said conversation was transmitted to a point where agents were secreted and that at the point of reception a tape recording of the conversation was made; that thereafter in reviewing the "tape" at his office it proved to be "inaudible" and thereafter was destroyed. To the best of the agents memory, the "tape" was in the custody of Agent when he last saw the "tape". b6 - 1
15. From the context of the Agent testimony at trial, it appears that the tape was destroyed prior to grand jury proceedings and also was not available at the time of the trial; Trial Counsel having to knowledge of the actual existence of the "tape" did not purrow this line of questioning.
Subsequent to the conviction and sertunding of the defendant, the defendant procurred in January of 1978 certain information from the records and files of the Department of Justice pursuant to an action filed under the Freedom of Information Act. This information disclosed the following:
(1) That not only was this conversation on December 2, 1974 transmitted, but it appears from the context of records and reports furnished to the defendant may also have been outfitted with a "body transmitter and recorder"; that a "tape" of said conversation was,

A copy of information which is relied upon, in part, is attached hereto as "Exhibit E". See page 130.
- (3) No report was ever filed as to the "tape" being inaudible or destroyed in accordance with Justice Department Regulations, but, to the contrary, that the reports filed clearly indicate that the "tape" was audible and it was presented before the Grand Jury.

AFFIDAVIT OF b6 - 5
I, on my oath, swear and depose as follows:
On or about September 25, 1975, the instant indictment was returned against me and several others. b6 - 6 b7c - 6
At my arraingment on September 26, 1975, I was represented by Esquire, Shortly thereafter, I contacted Esquire to represent me and learned at that time that he and his partner Esquire would also be representing a co-defendant named b7C - 2, 6
I also discussed with the matter of representation in certain state indictments which were then pending against me and indicated that since he and his partner were already representing in the state cases, they could represent the both of us.

previously represented in criminal cases, nor of the risks that may result because of this prior representation.
On September 29, 1975, filed a Notice of Appearance on behalf of co-defendant only and on September 30, 1975, filed a Notice of Appearance on my behalf only. b6 - 2, 6 b7C - 2, 6
On October 1, 1975, I went to the offices of and and had a conference at which only was present.
At that meeting, informed me he had prepared a letter ("Exhibit B") for me to sign for the Court stating "It's merely a formality to satisfy the Magistrate that there's no conflict of interest." In addition to the letter addressed to Magistrate Davis,

September 29, 1977

Dear Judge Caffrey, -

Please sir grant me this opportunity to plead for my life, Sir as you are well aware, I am Sixty years old and not in the best of health. With an eight year sentence at this stage of my life I feel that I have very little to look forward to. Very few people make parole from here and with the statutory and meritorious good time which I now receive and with no incidents or (shots) as they are called here, my release date will be five years and four months.

If God willing and the state of my health allows I can look forward to being released when I'm Sixty-Six years old.

Just thinking of it gives me chest pains. Your Honor, what have I done so bad that you have seen fit to keep me in prison for such a long period of time. Even Mr. Boudreau through my attorney offered me three years recomendation, and six years for my co-defendant. This at least shows Mr. Boudreau must have felt that I was at least half as bad as my co-defendant. I wanted to plead guilty, I believed that I might have gotten even less. I was advised by my attorney that you would not take a recomendation of numbers and would give me twenty years and the ball game would be over, as he put it, and I would have no recourse.

I later saw the next few people involved by the same government witness plead before your honor and get one year and the other eighteen months for the same charges as me. Every time I think of it and the sentence I got, I get sick. Yes your Honor I was afraid to plead because of what I was told, but worse than that my co-defendant told me "You aint pleading guilty and den I get buried." When he said - you "you aint pleady guilt" he meant just that and I knew it. I was more afraid of the implicit threat of those words than I was of the twenty years. I took the lesser of two evils and went on trial. I was foung not guilty of two charges, one of which was the worst. The conspiracy to collect the money by force or whatever. The truth of the matter is the government witness was a friend of _____ and even though the inerest was great there was no intent ever to harm him.

Im sorry your Honor I don't mean to try this case all over in my letter. The harm has been done and I must look forward to convince you that I am not all that bad. I exercised my right to a fair and speedy trial to which everyone is entitled. I was I was found guilty of two charges and not guilty of the other two yet I was given eight years. Am I being punished five extra years for exercising this right? Did I get to be a worse man than the one who was offered a recomendation of three years just for going on trial and excercising this right? Please your Honor I ask you to consider this.

I am not a fluent speaker and yet I tried in the courtroom when you asked if I had anything to say. I must say I was shaking when I got up to talk. I know I came across badly but I only tried to beg for a chance to stay free. I said then please let me walk out the door and I will never be back in here again. I meant it then, I mean it now.

By that I didn't mean I would run away, but that I would never do wrong again.

I believe I have been and could be again a good citizen.

I see in the Boston papers so many people in all walks of life who have not paid thier taxes. My name is not among them.

I am not a violent person nor am I an animal. I am well respected in my community as your Honor must be aware of with the many fine letters you have received in my behalf.

week and have built up a good business. I worked on Sundays to allow the people from out of state that were closed on Sundays to have a chance to come to my store at least once a week. I would say for a good many years I have worked long hard days well into the night, I have not associated with so called wise guys or frequented thier resturants and bars. I worked every day and nite and went home from the store and stayed home every night except once a week on Saturday night I went out to a movie or a play and a bite to eat. I have done this for years and anyone who knows me can verify this. I was very happy and content to do this and would like with Your help to go back to doing just that again. I am still much of the same man in prison that I was outside as I still try to help my fellow man.

James M. Martorano of Quincy, a reputed organized crime figure and a convicted loan shark, has, asked for a new trial in Federal Court, claiming that two members of a Boston law firm represented him and a codefendant with "divided loyalties" to his detriment but to the benefit of his codefendant, who was acquitted.

Martorano, 36, said he was denied "the exclusive loyalty and allegiance" of counsel when Joseph S. Of eri represented him and Oteri's partner, Martin G. Weinberg, defended Edward B. Halloran.

Martorano was convicted by a Federal Court jury in Boston in June 1976 on four loan sharking charges; was sentenced to 10 years in prison and was fined $10,000 by Chief Judge Andrew Caffrey. Halloran was acquitted by the jury.

The motion for a new trial has been filed with Judge Caffrey. Martin D. Boudreau, special Justice Department attorney assigned to the Organized Crime Strike Force, who prosecuted Martorano, has asked Judge Caffrey for additional time to reply to the request.

Martorano, who is represented by Richard J. Vita in his latest action, is confined to the Essex County. Correctional Alternatives Center in Lawrence, serving a three-to-four-year state sentence for receiving a stolen motor vehicle and possession of firearms. He was sentenced to the Walpole State Prison July 5, 1977, but was sent to the Lawrence facility because Walpole was crowded.

Martorano, who is described as a powerful figure in the Greater Boston underworld, will not begin serving his loan sharking sentence until he has completed his state term. He has lost in court attempts to overturn his loan sharking conviction and to obtain a reduction in the federal sentence.

Martorano has been a business associate of How, and T. Winter, the reputed organized crime leader who was convicted recently in a Somerville pinball case. Winter was given two nine-to-10-year prison terms.

Winter and Martorano owned a Columbus avenue building in Boston where Chandler's Restaurant was situated. Martorano, a graduate of Boston College, also owned an automobile body shop at a Somerville address where police claimed that Winter directed underworld activities.

Martorano and Halloran were among 10 men arrested in a loan sharking case involving Peter J. Pallotta of Revere, a onetime bank robber, who said he borrowed money from Martorano in an unsuccessful attempt to save his Revere nightclub, known as "The Bitter End"

Pallotta testified that Martorano's interest rate was $100 weekly on the $2000 he borrowed in a visit to Chandler's. He testified he was threatened with a gun because of his failure to make payments. Pallotta was outfitted by FBI agents with a body transmitter and recorder so evidence could be gathered against the defendants.

In his appeal, Martorano said he would have retained separate counsel to represent his own interests if he had been made aware by Oteri, Weinberg or the court of the risks or dangers that existed in joint representation.

He said that on various occasions in the trial, Oteri, during cross-examination of witnesses who had been examined by Weinberg on behalf of Halloran, was prevented by the court from inquiring into certain areas covered by Weinberg.

"Following the return of verdicts of acquittal of Halloran on all counts and verdicts of guilty against me on all four counts, I was stunned as I recalled our trial strategy," Martorano told Judge Caffrey.

Even after the verdicts, Martorano said, Oteri and Weinberg maintained that they would appeal Martorano's conviction because the verdict was in consistent as a matter of law. But he said the Court of Appeals rejected their issue on appeal.

"Upon reflection," he said in his motion for a new trial, "it is now clear to me that Mr. Oteri and Mr. Weinberg represented me with divided loyalties between myself and Halloran which affected their judgment and trial decisions ultimately to Halloran's benefit and to my detriment."

Martorano said he reluctantly testified because he realized that his criminal record could be intro- duced to impeach him. He was convicted in 1966 for conspiracy to harbor a fugitive and served six months at the Deer Island House of Correction. He also was convicted as an accessory in the murder of a Combat Zone wateress and got out of prison in 1968.

He claimed in his motion that Oteri had particle paled in a defense decision not to have Halloran testiff fy and that it was the strategy of the two lawyers to win acquittal for Halloran.

He quoted Oteri as saying:

"If he's found not guilty, you're not guilty."

Martorano's motion raises the question of whether Pallotta, the chief government witness, wore a body recorder as well as a transmitter to gather evidence. FBI Agent John Connolly testified that one conversation between Pallotta and others was transmitted to a point where FBI agents were hidden:

The FBI agent said a tape recording of the conversation was made but that it was found to be inaudible and thereafter destroyed.

But Martorano claims in his motion that information obtained from FBI files shows that a tape may not have been destroyed. Martorano's lawyer has asked Judge Caffrey for an evidentiary hearing at which the lawyers could testify.

Court rules against Martorano furlough

By Richard J. Connolly Globe Staff

, James M. Martorano of Quincy, an alleged toplevel member of the Howard T. Winter crime organization, has lost an attempt to force the state Correction Department to grant him a furlough from a campus-like penal facility in Lawrence.

Through his attorney, Richard J. Vita of Boston, the 36-year-old Martorano claimed that the Correction Department violated his constitutional rights by refusing his furlough.

Judge Roger J. Donahue of Suffolk Superior Court has denied Martorano's petition for a preliminary injunction against Terrence Marks, director of the Lawrence Correctional Alternative Center, which is the former Essex County Training School for Boys.

Judge Donahue sentenced Martorano to three to four years in Walpole state prison on July 5, 1977, on a charge of receiving a stolen motor vehicle, but allowed Martorano to serve the time at the House of Correction, in Lawrence which has jurisdiction over the alternative center. However, Essex County officials and the Department of Correction allowed Martorano to serve the sentence at the Alternative Center, a facility with less security than the House of Correction.

Martorano, who will be eligible for parole consideration in several months, faces a 10-year federal prison sentence for loansharking when he has completed his state sentence. He was convicted on four loansharking charges and fined $10,000 in US District Court in Boston in June, 1976. The 10-year federal sentence was postponed pending completion of the state sentence.

He is seeking a new federal court trial, contending that two members of a Boston law firm, attorneys Joseph S. Oteri and Martin G. Weinberg, represented him and a codefendant in the loansharking trial with "divided loyalties" to his detriment and to the benefit of the codefendant, Edward B. Halloran of Dorchester, who was acquitted.

Law enforcement officials have described Martorano as a powerful figure in the Boston underworld and a close associate of Winter, the Somerville-based gang leader who is serving a prison sentence for trying to force Somerville establishments to use certain printal machines.

Convicted loanshark denied new trial

By Richard J. Connolly Globe Staff

James M. Martorano of Quincy, a convicted loanshark who is classified by law enforcement officers as a top-level figure in organized crime, has been denied a new trial. The federal judge in the case said one of Martorano's claims was "preposterous" and there was no evidence that his case had been prejudiced.

Martorano, 36, who is serving a 10year federal prison sentence, contended that two members of a Boston law firm, Joseph S. Oteri and Martin G.

Weinberg, had "divided loyalties" in representing him and a coderendant in a 1976 trial in US District Court, Beston.

Mortorano maintained the joint representation was to his detriment and to the benefit of the codefendant, Edward B. Halloran of Dorchester, who was acquitted.

But Chief Judge Andrew A. Caffrey said that Martorano participated actively in his own defense which was "substantial and vigorous." If his defense had been believed by the jury, he would have been exonerated, according to Judge Caffrey, who presided at the trial.

The judge said Martorano was defended in "an able manner indicative of their (the lawyers) extensive experience in criminal law." Caffrey said the record did not indicate any divergence between the interests of Martorano and Halloran.

In an evidentiary hearing, Martorano testified that he signed but did read a letter in which he said he wanted Oteri to represent him, realising that Oteri's associate represented Martorano's codelendant. "Martorano now complains that this letter of waiver to the court was not knowingly executed," Judge Caffrey said in his ruling. "I find that testimony preposterous.

"He is also a sophisticated businessman, and as such, I find he would not and did not sign such a letter without reading it ..." the judge said.

Martorano's attorney Richard J. Vita, has indicated he will appeal the

Martorano awaiting appeal

FD-350 (Rev. 10-19-77)

Reputed organized crime figure James M. Martorano. 38, of Quincy is being held without bail until his case can be reheard Feb. 1 in the US Court of Appeals in Boston. The court yesterday changed its mind and withdrew an opinion it issued last month which had set aside Martorane's 1976 loansharking conviction and 10-year prison sentence. The court gave no reason for its reversal.

Prosecution wins bid in the Martorano case

The First Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals has decided to give government prosecutors a new hearing on an appeal by reputed organized crime figure James Martorano, 38, of Weymouth, whose loansharking conviction and 10-year prison sentence were overturned last month.

The appeals court said yesterday it would grant the rehearing request by attorneys Jeremiah T. O'Sullivan and Martin Boudreau of the New England Organized Crime Strike Force.

The circuit court had overturned Martorano's conviction Dec. 6 on the grounds that Martorano was not properly advised of the dangers of having the same law firm, Oteri and Weinberg of Boston, representing both him and his co-defendant, who was acquitted.

Martorano had been convicted in 1976 of charging extortionate interest rates on a $2,000 loan to a Revere nightclub owner. Chief U.S. District Judge Andrew A. Caffrey at that time sentenced Martorano to 10 years imprisonment.

Martorano, said to have been a key member of Somerville's so-called "Winter Hill Gang, also was sentenced to two years imprisonment last summer for his role in a multi-million dollar horse race fixing scheme.

The latest decision by the appeals court also denies Martorano's request for bail pending a new trial on the loansharking conviction.

U.S. District Judge A. David Mazzone had set bail pending appeal at $100,000 on the race-fixing charge, but Martorano had remained in custody because Caffrey denied attorney Richard Egbert's request for bail on the loansharking case.

The new hearing on the appeal will be held in February before the full bench of the appeals court, Chief Judge Frank Coffin, Circuit Judge Levin Campbell and Circuit Judge Hugh Bownes.

At the original appeal hearing, U.S. District Judge Raymond Pettine of Rhode Island sat in for. Campbell.

New hearing is set for Martorano

By William F. Doherty Globe Staff

The US Court of Appeals in Boston yesterday changed its mind and withdrew an opinion it issued last month which had set aside the 10-year prison sentence and loansharking conviction of a reputed organized crime figure.

The court ordered a new hearing Feb. 1 before a different panel of judges in the case of James M. Martorano, 38, of Quincy, and also denied Martorano bail pending the rehearing. The court gave no reason for its reversal.

In setting aside the conviction in a 2-to-1 decision in December, the court upneld Martorano's claim that two members of a Boston law firm represented him and a codefendant with "divided loyalties" to Martorano's detriment and to the benefit of the codefendant who was acquitted.

Martorano claimed he was harmed by the joint representation at the 1976 trial. He was defended by attorney Joseph S. Oteri while Oteri's partner, Martin Weinberg, represented the codefendant, Edward B. Halloran.

Martorano claimed that Oteri failed to call a witness who could have helped his case because the witness would have harmed Halloran's case.

Re memo of Supv. 1/15/80.

Attached are copies of the decision rendered by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the First Circuit on 12/6/79 regarding United States vs. and subsequent order of the court rendered 1/10/80 granting a re-hearing en banc in the matter of US vs.

Inasmuch as the USDC has reversed the decision of 12/6/79, this case should be placed in a closed status. Should the court in subsequent rulings order a new trial, the case will be re-opened.

APPEAL FROM THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE DISTRICT OF MASSACHUSETTS
[Hon. Andrew A. Caffrey, U.S. District Judge]

Before Coffin, Chief Judge,
Bownes, Circuit Judge,
Pettine, District Judge.*

Richard J. Vita for appellant.

Wade Livingston, Attorney, Department of Justice, with whom Edward F. Harrington, United States Attorney, District of Massachusetts, and Joseph S. Davies, Attorney, Department of Justice, were on brief for appellee.

December 6, 1979

Bownes, Circuit Judge. In this appeal from the denial of his motion for a new trial, appellant seeks reversal of his extortion conviction on grounds of ineffective assistance of counsel due to joint representation.

Appellant and Brian Halloran were tried together on four counts of extortion in June 1976. The jury acquitted Halloran, but found appellant guilty on all counts. We affirmed appellant's conviction and denied his petition for rehearing. United States v. Martorano, 557 F.2d 1 (1st Cir.), rehearing denied, #76-1372 (1st Cir. May 23, 1977) (unpub.) and 561 F.2d 406 (1st Cir. 1977), cert. denied 435 U.S. 922 (1978).

^{*} Of the District of Rhode Island, sitting by designation.

In February 1978, appellant moved for a new trial on grounds of newly discovered evidence. Because final judgment had been entered more than one year before the motion was filed, a motion for new trial on any other grounds would have been untimely. See Fed. R. Crim. P. 33. Appellant's "newly discovered evidence" was that he had been prejudiced at trial because he and Halloran had been jointly represented by members of the same law firm. This "evidence" was said to be "newly discovered" because appellant did not learn of the prejudice until he obtained new (his present) counsel, which was after his appeal and petition for rehearing had been decided.

The district court held an evidentiary hearing on appellant's motion for a new trial, at which appellant and all counsel involved in his trial testified. In its opinion and order on the motion, the court ruled, as a threshold matter, that it was treating the motion as one to vacate a sentence under 28 U.S.C. § 2255, on the ground that the issue of ineffective assistance due to joint representation does not constitute "newly discovered evidence" within the meaning of Rule 33. As to the merits of the motion, the court found that, prior to his trial, appellant had knowingly waived his sixth amendment right to separate counsel. Because, however, the trial judge had not complied with United States v. Foster, 469 F.2d 1, 4-5 (1st Cir. 1972), by personally addressing appellant concerning his waiver, the district court, in ruling on the motion for a new trial, believed it was necessary to reach the issue whether appellant had been prejudiced by his joint representation and to place the burden of proof on this issue on the government. After reviewing the evidence bearing on the issue of prejudice, the district court ruled that appellant had not been harmed by the fact he had shared trial counsel with Halloran. Accordingly, the court denied appellant's motion for a new trial. United States v. Martorano, 457 F.Supp. 803, 810 (D. Mass. 1978). This timely appeal followed.

WAIVER

Appellee argues that since the district court's finding of a knowing and voluntary waiver is supported by the record, we should affirm the denial of the new-trial motion on that ground and not reach the issue of prejudice. Appellant contends that the district court's finding of waiver is erroneous and that, in any event, the issue of prejudice must be reached because the trial judge failed to comply with its duty of inquiry under Foster. We agree with the latter portion of appellant's argument.

The right to separate counsel, guaranteed by the sixth amendment, is waivable in recognition of the fact that occasionally joint representation can be appropriate or even advantageous to multiple defendants. United States v. Waldman, 579 F.2d 649, 651 (1st Cir. 1978). An understanding, or even an awareness, of the risks inherent in joint representation, however, is not a part of the basic knowledge of the average layperson. For this reason, and because waiver of any constitutional right is a serious matter, courts bear a special responsibility in evaluating a criminal defendant's purported waiver of his sixth amendment right to separate counsel. Id. In view of this responsibility, in Foster we devised a rule under our supervisory powers for district courts to adhere to in evaluing such waivers. The district court's "duty of inquiry" under Foster requires a trial court to comment, "as early in the litigation as practicable," on some of the risks indigneous to joint representation and to "inquire diligently" of jointly-represented defendants whether they have discussed these risks with counsel and whether they are aware of their rights to separate (and, if indigent, court-appointed) counsel. 469 F.2d at 5.

¹ Since Foster, we have expanded the district court's duty of inquiry to require a fuller warning which includes a more detailed explanation of the risks involved in joint representation. United States v. Donahue, 560 F.2d 1039, 1948-4 (1st Cir. 1977).

It is undisputed that the trial court failed to address appellant about the waiver which appellant filed with the court. The trial court first learned that appellant and Halloran were being represented by two members (Oteri and Weinberg) of the same firm at Halloran's arraignment, which was held several days after appellant's. Upon learning of the joint representation, the magistrate, in recognition of his duty under Foster, questioned Halloran about possible conflicts of interest. He then instructed attorney Weinberg, who had accompanied Halloran, to inform Halloran and appellant about their right to separate counsel and, if either defendant wished to waive that right, to have him send a letter of waiver to the court. Appellant was not present at Halloran's arraignment and at no other time during the course of the trial did the magistrate or the trial judge speak to him about his joint representation.

The district court found, however, upon the basis of the evidence presented at the hearing on the motion for a new trial, that appellant did in fact voluntarily and knowingly waive his right to separate counsel before he was tried. The evidence upon which the court's finding was based is the following. Shortly after Halloran's arraignment, appellant was called to the office of Oteri and Weinberg. There, Weinberg gave him two letters which Weinberg had drafted, one purporting to be from Oteri to Martorano (advising Martorano of the magistrate's instructions to counsel) and the other from Martorano to the magistrate (stating that appellant was aware of his right to separate counsel and of the risks of joint representation, but that he still wished to retain his present counsel). Appellant was given a few minutes to read these letters, he then signed them, and later Weinberg had the letter to the magistrate filed with the court.

This expansion of our supervisory rule does not, however, apply retroactively, Waldman, 579 F.2d at 652, so it is inapplicable to the present case in which trial occurred in 1976.

As of August 1, 1979, Rule 44(c), Fed. R. Crim. P., requires district courts to advise jointly-represented defendants about their right to separate representation. The Rule, however, does not require as detailed an inquiry as our supervisory rule which, of course, is controlling in this circuit.

Conflicting evidence was presented at the hearing concerning whether Weinberg ever explained the meaning of the letters to appellant. The district court found that Weinberg did discuss the contents of the letters with appellant and ruled, on the basis of the letters and this discussion, that appellant's letter to the magistrate constituted a knowing and voluntary waiver of appellant's right to conflict-free counsel. Appellee argues that this finding is supported by the record, so there is no need for us to reach the issue of prejudice even though the trial court failed to comply with Foster.

... The short answer to appellee's argument is that rarely, if ever, will we consider a waiver adequate when the trial court has not met its duty of inquiry under Foster (and where applicable, Donahue, see note 1 infra), United States v. Lawriw, 568 F.2d 98, 105 (8th Cir. 1977), cert. denied 435 U.S. 969 (1978) (dictum); cf. Waldman, supra, 579 F.2d at 651-53 & n.6, and this case does not constitute such a rarity. The purpose of the Foster rule is to ensure that there is an on-the-record exchange between the trial court and defendant from which it can readily be inferred that the waiver was voluntary and knowing. In the absence of such an exchange, it is doubtful that the evidence of a valid waiver would ever be so unambiguous that, "indulg[ing] [in] every reasonable presumption" against a finding of waiver, Glasser v. United States, 315 U.S. 60, 70 (1942), we could still affirm a district court's prowaiver finding.

Here, the evidence that appellant's waiver was voluntary and knowing was certainly not unambiguous. The letters which Martorano signed stated that he had been informed of the risks of sharing trial counsel and of his right to separate counsel. These letters, however, do not constitute strong evidence that he understood the dangers involved because they only stated that appellant was "aware" of the "risks" and did not describe any risks.2 Appellant testified, as did attorneys Oteri and Weinberg, that he never did discuss the contents of the letters with his attorneys. Counsel believed that there were no conflicts of interest between Halloran and appellant. Thus, Fig. Little Many with the Many of the

Pursuant to general instructions issued by the Magistrate Willie Davis on September 29, 1975, I advise you as follows pursuant to the rules articulated by the United States Court of Appeals for the First Circuit in a case styled United States v. Foster, 369 F2d 1. As you know, I represent both yourself and Brian Halloran in the above-captioned matter. The Foster case held that there were dangers to criminal defendants like yourselves inherent in any joint representation. The Court asked me to advise you of the risks involved in joint representation so that you would be aware of risks and, would if you wished, retain separate counsel.

I enclose for your consideration the following letter which I have authored on your behalf which, if it conforms to your desires, may be signed by you and forwarded back to me for the purposes of sending to the Court to satisfy its burden under the Foster case of ascertaining whether or not you are conscious and aware of the fact that you may retain separate counsel and may be prejudiced by joint representation. tation.

Sincerely, Joseph S. Oteri

they viewed the preparation of the letters as a mere technicality to ensure, in view of the magistrate's instructions, their continued representation of appellant and Halloran. Appellant testified that, given this attitude of counsel towards the letters, he felt no need to satisfy himself as to their meaning before signing them. Due to this conflicting evidence concerning the validity of appellant's waiver, the district court was correct in proceeding to consider the issue of prejudice and in placing the burden of proof on appellee.³

PREJUDICE

Citing to Holloway v. Arkansas, 435 U.S. 475 (1978), appellant argues that, when a jointly-represented defendant has not voluntarily and knowingly waived his right to separate counsel, we should find prejudice as a matter of course. This issue was not raised below. Therefore, only if a failure to consider the issue would result in manifest injustice, do we need to reach it. See, e.g., United States v. Emery, 541 F.2d 887, 889 n.3 (1st Cir. 1976).

We declined to adopt the per se rule appellant desires in Foster, 469 F.2d at 5, and do not read Holloway as requiring us to reconsider that decision.4 It is true that this is the second post-Foster trial of which we are aware in which the trial court failed to adhere to our supervisory rule concerning waiver, thereby requiring us to analyze a lengthy trial record and engage in "the impossible task of speculating about what might have happened" had appellant had his own lawyer. Lollar v. United States, 376 F.2d 243, 248 (D.C. Cir. 1967) (C.J. Bazelon, dissenting). Both trials occurred, however, in 1976 before our opinion in Donahue in which we stressed how important we viewed compliance with the rule on waiver to be. Thus, it is not apparent at this time that a per se rule is necessary to encourage such compliance. Compare United States v. Scott, 583 F.2d 362, 364 (7th Cir. 1978) (en banc as to adoption of per se rule). In sum, we see no reason to reconsider in this appeal whether a per se rule should be adopted.

In Foster we ruled that where a satisfactory inquiry into waiver does not appear on the trial record, the government bears the burden of persuasion on the issue of prejudice. The government must "demonstrate from the record that prejudice to the defendant was improbable" if the issue is raised by way of a direct appeal from a conviction. "If the issue arises in the context of a [28 U.S.C.] § 2255 motion, the government will bear the burden of establishing the unlikelihood of prejudice by a preponderance of the evidence." 469 F.2d at 5.

Appellee contends that the district court properly treated appellant's motion for a new trial as a § 2255 motion. Thus, appellee argues, it need only prove "the unlikelihood of prejudice by a preponderance of the evidence."

⁵ The first trial was Donahue.

⁴ In Holloway the Court held that, when a trial court fails to give due consideration to a court-appointed defense counsel's contention that the defendants he is jointly-representing have conflicting interests, reversal of the defendants' convictions is automatically required. 435 U.S. at 488.

Appellant argues that the district court erred in treating its motion as a motion to vacate sentence under § 2255. Therefore, the government must prove that prejudice was ``improbable."

The issue whether ineffective assistance can ever properly be raised in a motion for new trial on grounds of newly discovered evidence is an open question in this circuit, United States v. Carlson, 561 F.2d 105, 109 (1st Cir.), cert. denied 434 U.S. 973 (1977); United States v. McCambridge, 551 F.2d 865, 873 (1st Cir. 1977) which will not be resolved here, for whichever standard we apply our decision on the issue of prejudice remains the same.

Appellant points to three of defense counsel's tactical decisions as indicating that his interests, in terms of which defense strategy to pursue, conflicted with Halloran's and that defense counsel consistently chose the tactics which benefitted Halloran. Defense counsels' reasons for so proceeding were, according to appellant, their theory of defense that, if Halloran was acquitted, appellant's acquittal would automatically follow and their preference for Halloran due to their longer association with him.

The three decisions which allegedly benefitted Halloran at appellant's expense were defense counsel's insistence that appellant testify, their decision that Halloran not testify, and their refusal to call Louis Pallotta. Counsels' decision not to call Pallotta constitutes sufficient evidence of prejudice to require a new trial. Hence, we need not consider whether counsels' other tactics also resulted in prejudice to appellant.

Appellant contends that, if Louis Pallotta had testified, he would have corroborated appellant's version of the loan transaction and rebutted the version of the government's chief witness, Louis' brother, Peter Pallotta. Appellant thought it would be very effective to have Peter contradicted by his own brother. For these reasons, appellant continually urged defense counsel to call Louis. Louis was not called, however, because defense counsel, according to appellant, feared that the prosecution would on cross examination of Louis elicit testimony damaging to Halloran. Appellee argues that even a defense counsel loyal only to appellant would not have called Louis because his credibility was so open to attack.

In determining whether the decision not to call Louis indicates that appellant was prejudiced by his joint representation we consider whether, in terms of appellant's defense, calling Louis was "an alternate strategy [which]—whatever its ultimate merit—plainly existed" and whether it "involved, as between the joint defendants, some potential for conflict of interest" Donahue, 560 F.2d at 1045.

On the basis of our review of the trial record we find that calling Louis was "an alternate strategy [which] whatever its ultimate merit-plainly existed." In other words, an attorney representing only appellant might reasonably have pursued this strategy. After the government rested its case-in-chief, any competent defense counsel would have realized that for appellant to have any chance of being acquitted, he had to put on some kind of defense. The victim of the alleged extortion scheme, Peter Pallotta, has testified in detail about how appellant had lent him $2000 at extortionate rates, how, after Peter defaulted, appellant had threatened him with harm, and how appellant had sent Halloran to rob Peter's nightclub to recover overdue interest payments. It is true that Peter's credibility was vigorously attacked on cross-examination but the government's case against appellant did not rest on Peter's testimony alone. The government also admitted

⁶ On direct examination Peter informed the jury about his lengthy criminal record. On cross, testimony was elicited from Peter from which it could be inferred that he had fabricated his allegations against Halloran and appellant in order to obtain a taped telephone conversation between appellant and Peter in which appellant's statements practically constituted admissions of guilt.7 Therefore, as appellant's trial counsel recognized, they could not rest without putting in some kind of defense.

Calling Louis Pallotta, however, was not defense counsels' only choice in terms of putting on a defense for appellant. Counsel had reason to believe that appellant would make a good witness. One-half of his criminal record was already in evidence and the other half was relatively minor, so the fact that appellant's record would probably be revealed to the jury if he testified was not a major drawback to calling appellant. Counsel believed that appellant was charming, articulate, intelligent, and had the appearance of a business man. They knew that appellant was government protection. According to Peter's testimony, he was in default on loans from other alleged loan sharks, an arrest warrant for him was outstanding in Massachusetts for failure to pay child support, and he had committed numerous parole violations which, if discovered by the proper authorities, would result in a minimum jail term of seven years. Other portions of Peter's testimony on cross indicated that he thought all of these problems would be "cured" if he assisted the government in preparing a case against Halloran and appellant.

The telephone conversation initiated by Peter and recorded with his permission was as follows:

Peter: Jimmy [appellant], I ain't got any money. I'm trying to put something together.

Appellant: Oh, why don't you stop by and see me.

Peter: I'm afraid to go down there, you know that.

Appellant: You don't have to be afraid to come down to see me.

I'm afraid I'll wind up gettin' slapped in the face. Peter: Appellant: Nothin's gonna happen.

Hub?

Appellant: Don't talk like that on the phone.

Peter: Oh, all right. All right, can I meet you somewhere Appellant: You can come any time. What do you think I'm gonna do something 'round my own place? Be kind of stupid wouldn't it? Ah, first chance you get drop by and see me. all right?

Peter: Okay. All right, Jim.

a family man, had been steadily employed for the last few years, and had recently earned a B.S. degree by going to Boston College nights. Furthermore, appellant was the only person who could attempt to explain away his statements on the tape because the recorded conversation admitted in evidence had been solely between Peter and himself. Therefore, defense counsel would have been foolish not to call, and in fact did call, appellant for purposes of presenting a defense on his own behalf.

Since calling appellant to testify was a reasonable strategy to pursue, defense counsel were not faced with a situation where calling Louis was realistically their only choice in terms of presenting a defense for appellant. Still, we cannot say on the basis of the record before us that it would have been unreasonable for an attorney representing only appellant to have called Louis as well. Louis was the only other person present besides Peter and appellant when the loan was negotiated. If he had been called, he would have corroborated appellant's version of these negotiations and rebutted Peter's. Appellant had testified that the loan had been made to his good friend, Louis, not to Peter, whom he met for the first time that day, that Peter accompanied Louis because Louis thought appellant might be able to give Peter some advice on an unrelated matter, and that the loan to Louis was interestfree and without definite terms as to repayment. Louis, according to appellant, repaid the loan within a few weeks, before the date on which appellant allegedly had Halloran rob Peter's club. If Louis had testified, he would have corroborated this version of the loan transaction, rather than Peter's. Although the government's case against appellant was strong, this corroboration of appellant's testimony might have made the difference in the jury's decision as to whether appellant was guilty "beyond a reasonable doubt."

It is true, as appellee argues, that calling Louis was a risk because the prosecution was aware that Louis had a history of mental health problems and had made a prior inconsistent statement to the F.B.I. Thus, defense counsel were properly concerned that Louis' credibility might have been destroyed during cross examination, which could then have led to a weakening of appellant's credibility in the eyes of the jury. Still, there is no evidence in the record indicating that Louis could not have overcome his credibility problems. For all we know his mental health problems might have had no bearing on his ability to tell the truth or to give a reliable account of the loan transaction. Moreover, there is no evidence indicating that Louis could not have persuaded the jurors that his prior statement to the F.B.I. was false and that they should believe his testimony at trial. It is possible that Louis lied to the F.B.I. on impulse to protect his brother (who had already agreed to "cooperate" with the F.B.I. in building a case against appellant), but then later decided to tell the truth even though he would be contradicting his brother by doing so. The question of credibility is always an iffy one. The only way appellant's testimony about the terms of the loan could have been corroborated was through Louis. We have no reason to doubt that calling him would have been an acceptable risk. In sum, on the basis of the record before us, we cannot say with any assurance that an attorney representing only appellant would not reasonably have called Louis to strengthen the defense. Thus, calling Louis was "an alternate strategy [which]—whatever its ultimate merit—plainly existed" in terms of making a case for appellant.

We next consider whether, as between Halloran and appellant, there was a potential for conflict in calling Louis. In other words, since calling Louis was not an unreasonable strategy in terms of appellant's defense, we consider whether it might have been an unwise tactic in terms of Halloran's defense.

It is undisputed that Louis could not have given any testimony that would have directly benefitted Halloran because Louis had no personal knowledge concerning Halloran's alleged involvement in the extortion scheme. Moreover, there is evidence that calling Louis might have harmed Halloran. At the hearing on appellant's motion for a new trial appellant testified that defense counsel told him they were not going to call Louis because they feared that on cross examination of Louis the prosecution would elicit damaging evidence with regard to Halloran's reputation and character. Attorney Weinberg admitted that this was one reason why Louis was not called. A review of the trial record corroborates the testimony at this hearing that calling Louis might have harmed Halloran.

During the government's case-in-chief at appellant's trial, Peter Pallotta had testified that he was afraid of Halloran because he knew Halloran was "a loan shark, collector, and enforcer and a madman" and "if you didn't ... pay [him] you would get a beating or maybe worse." However, because Peter had been subjected to vigorous cross examination, see note 6 supra, his testimony alone did not constitute overwhelming evidence against Halloran. Furthermore, the government had not been successful in admitting any other evidence (e.g., a taped conversation) against Halloran. Therefore, it is probable that a major concern of any attorney representing Halloran would have been to prevent any damaging evidence from coming in against Halloran during the presentation of the defense. In view of Louis' expected testimony on cross, corroborating Peter's testimony about Halloran's reputation and character, a defense attorney representing Halloran would not only not have called Louis, but would have been concerned to hear that he would be called by a codefendant. Thus, calling Louis would have involved, "as between the joint defendants, a potential for conflict of interest." Donahue, 560 F.2d at 1045. Given this fact and the fact that calling Louis was "an alternate strategy [which]—whatever its ultimate merit—plainly existed" for appellant, id., appellee has not established that prejudice to appellant arising from his joint representation was improbable. Moreover, there is enough evidence of a conflict here so we also cannot say that appellee has proven the unlikelihood of prejudice by a preponderance of the evidence. Hence, we reverse appellant's conviction and remand for a new trial.

Having found that appellant is entitled to a new trial we need not reach the issue whether the district court erred in refusing to recuse itself from considering appellant's motion.

Reversed and remanded.

Coffin, Chief Judge (dissenting). While I am uncomfortable with the court's holding that appellant, a college graduate and sophisticated businessman, did not waive his right to conflict-free counsel, I can see the value of generally requiring an on-the-record exchange between court and defendant. I can therefore accept the court's holding on waiver.

My problem materializes when I consider the question of prejudice. The court's opinion seizes on the decision not to call Louis Pallotta as sufficient evidence of prejudice to require a new trial. It notes appellant's arguments that Pallotta would have corroborated appellant's version of the loan transaction, rebutting his brother Peter, which would have been helpful; and that defense counsel refused to call Pallotta because cross-examination would elicit testimony damaging to Halloran.

The standard adopted by the court's opinion is, to quote from United States v. Donahue, 560 F.2d 1039, 1045 (1st Cir. 1977), whether the action (i.e., calling Louis Pallotta as a witness) was "an alternate strategy [which]—whatever its ultimate merit—plainly existed." The court's opinion obviously assumed this standard was met.

The trial court, however, made these findings—that Louis Pallotta would be a liability to both appellant and Halloran; that Pallotta had made a prior statement to the FBI flatly contradicting any exculpatory testimony he might have given for the defense; that he had a lengthy psychiatric history including diagnosis as a paranoid schizophrenic; that Halloran ran less risk of embarrassment from Pallotta's testifying, because of prior inconsistencies, than did appellant; that after a trial run at testifying Martorano's lawyer thought Pallotta to be a "terrible witness". The court concluded that "there is no reason in the world to speculate that separate counsel would have analyzed the potential impact of Louis Pallotta's testimony any differently" than did appellant's counsel.

These observations I think it important to note, are not evaluations of strategy, where our hindsight judgments might well be as valid as those of the trial court. They are the clearest indicia of the vulnerability of Pallotta's credibility. I see absolutely no basis for disagreement with the trial judge and cannot see how the court can say: "We have no reason to doubt that calling him [Pallotta] would have been an acceptable risk."

In short, I would hold that the government has more than adequately sustained its burden of demonstrating that "prejudice to the defendant was improbable". United States v. Foster, 469 F.2d 1, 5 (1st Cir. 1972). It seems to me that the court, in holding that calling Louis Pallotta was a strategy that "plainly existed", may well be taking too literally the caveat in Donahue, "whatever its ultimate merit", and therefore is confusing the ability to articulate a strategy with a realistic chance to pursue one. Such a reading, of course, would entirely eviscerate the standard of probability of prejudice established in Foster. I fear that the court's approach in this case comes too close to adopting a per se rule of prejudice in all cases where conflict is not waived.

UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS JOR THE FIRST CIRCUIT

No. 78-1445.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Appellee,

ν.

JAMES MARTORANO, Defendant, Appellant. S. COURT OF APPEALS

Filed In Clark's Office

14 M 1 0 1980

FOR THE FIRST CIRCUIT

RECEIVED

Before COFFIN, Chief Judge, CAMPBELL and BOWNES, Circuit Judges.

ORDER OF COURT

Entered January 10, 1980

A majority of the judges in regular active service on this Court having voted for a rehearing en banc,

The opinion of the Court filed on December 6, 1979, is withdrawn and the judgment entered on said date is vacated;

The petition for release on bail is denied; and

This case is assigned for rehearing en banc on Friday, February 1, 1980.

By the Court:

Is! DANA H. GALLUN

[Cert. C. Clerk, U.S.D.C., Mass.; cc: Messrs. Vita and Livingston.]
and Boudreau

Martorano the loser as court flip-flops

By JAMES CONNOLLY
Staff Writer

James Martorano, 38, of Weymouth, yesterday suffered a setback in his bid to overturn his 1976 loansharking conviction. The conviction carried a 10-year prison sentence.

Martorano, a business partner and friend of reputed Somerville organized crime boss Howard T. Winter, had achieved a victory in December when the First Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals overturned the conviction on grounds that Martorano had not been warned of the dangers of having the same law firm represent him and a co-defendant.

But yesterday, by a 2-1 vote, the circuit court reversed its December finding under a rarely-used procedure known as an "en banc" hearing.

The rehearing had been sought by New England Organized Crime Strike Force attorneys Jeremiah T. O'Sullivan and Martin Boudreau after a panel including Chief Judge Frank Coffin, Circuit Judge Hugh Bownes and U.S. District Judge Raymond Pettine set aside the conviction.

That panel had ruled that Chief U.S. District Judge Andrew A. Caffrey erred in not warning Martorano that his defense could be damaged if the same law firm, Oteri and Weinberg of Boston, represented both him and co-defendant, Brian Halloran of Dorchester. (Halloran was acquitted while Martorano was found gally of making an extor-tionate $2000 loan to a Revere nightclub owner.)

But at the rehearing of the appeal in February, from which yesterday's decision resulted, Pettine was replaced by Circuit Judge Levin Campbell, who with Coffin and Bownes is on the regular circuit bench.

Over the objections of Martorano's latest attorney, Richard Egbert of Boston, the court voted to rehear the case. In his 16-page opinion, Campbell said a judge who is not a regular member of the court can be replaced by a regular member when the "uniformity and stability of precedent will suffer" by a decision.

The new ruling, which said that Martorano was not prejudiced by Weinberg's decision not to call a witness who Martorano felt might have hurt Halloran's defense at the 1976 trial, was an attempt to "clarify" the standard by which prejudice in cases of joint-representation are evaluated according to Campbell. The decision removes from the government's shoulders the burden of proving that the defendant was not prejudiced.

Campbell joined Coffin, who had dissented on the December decision, in affirming the Martorano conviction.

Martorano began his 10-year prison term 20 months ago after serving a state prison term for illegal possession of a firearm. In August, U.S. District Judge A. David Mazzone sentenced Martorano to an additional two-year prison term for his role in a scheme to fix horse races.
